

With media to reach me in so many ways (TV, Radio, Mailings) I would request that banks comply with the requests of Hoosiers for privacy on their phone lines. Those who wish to have calls, can still do so by not registering on the Do-Not-Call list. Those of us who don't want this use of our personal phone lines, should have the right to be left alone. The tele-marketers are not willing to give me their home number so I can call them back to talk about issues later. They understand that a home should be a refuge for relaxation, not a cage with marketing coming from all directions at all times.
